

I will change the world by...

I can change the world through many ways, but I am starting off with one of the ways, politics.

Politics

I can picture me changing the world through many ways, but I am starting off with politics. I would fight for what I believe is right. I would put myself in other peoples shoes and make sure they have a fair chance. I believe that as Secretary of State I could help make better immigration laws that bring in more immigrants but also keep America safe. I also believe that I could help more immigrant children reunite with their families, instead of about 60 families reunited in a month, 100 families reunited in a month. Also creating more funding for more buildings for immigrant children to stay. I also believe that I could help make those places more comfortable and home-like for those children.

I also believe that I can help with the complications of treaties and get on better terms with other countries as time passes such as, Afghanistan- I would help get the things children want for learning to read and write, and women and girls to have the same rights as men. I would also figure out ways to bring many terrorist groups to justice, not just in Afghanistan, but in Russia, and Pakistan too.

Psychology

For a long time, I have wanted to be a psychologist, specifically a criminal psychologist because I could help many people who are in trouble with the law. By helping these people work through therapy, problem solving and talking through things, I would help them start a new life.

As a psychologist I also believe that I can change the world by helping stressed children. It would also bring down the rates of suicide and other difficult problems they have in their livestream home such as not being able to sleep at home or parents who fight, or parents who take drugs or have too much alcohol. Those parents aren't really there and that takes a toll on their kids, those kids have to care for themselves and their siblings. I believe I can help work through problems like that.

Taking Action Now- As a kid

That is how I believe I can change the world when I get older, but I have been trying to do my part and help change the world as a kid too. I have been creating what I call "Homeless bags," which are bags me and family make that include, snacks, some hygiene products, places to go to start a new life, and a bus fair to get where they need to go. I have been giving them these bags out and seeing a lot of smiles I hope to keep doing this. As Halloween comes around, I will "Trick or treat so others can eat", which is a special thing we do each year, where we volunteer our time with our school and put flyers up in our neighborhood and then pick up canned food, then others can have a happy holiday! That is truly how I believe I can change the world.
