

I Matter

I matter like batter in a cake.

I matter like chit-chat of students in a class.

I matter like the clatter of a tambourine.

I matter like the splatter of a paintbrush.

Point is, I matter because I'm thoughtful, unique, talented, kind hearted, and thankful, thankful to be on this planet, and thankful to matter like everyone else. It's amazing how many people matter on this earth, and I'm glad there's so many talented, kind unique, amazing, and thoughtful people on this planet. I can even say animals matter as well. We all matter, put it like this. If there weren't any chefs, who would make food, and invent different recipes? If there weren't any parents, who would raise us? If there weren't any architects, who would build and design our homes? If there weren't teachers, who would teach us? Without everyone and everything on this planet, our home would be a mess. That's why everyone matters. I matter, you matter, WE MATTER!
