

Title: Small Changes

I will change the world by volunteering at different organizations like After the Harvest. When I'm older I can help kids who struggle in school or sports but can still do great things. I can help show people that there is more to kids who don't look or learn the same as them. I believe that instead of giving them odd looks or giggling when they walk by, we should help, support, and be kind to them. Sometimes changing the world isn't about the big things, but about the small things we do every day. I can change the world by volunteering at least once a month for a couple of hours and picking up trash in parks and at school. Changing the world shouldn't be this big endeavor. If everyone did an act of kindness every day, the world would already be better. I will focus on the small changes until I have the knowledge and experience to change the world.
