

Ending Homophobia

I will change the world by ending homophobia. The first thing I would do is teach kids that you can love anyone and to be who you are. I could also donate to lgbtq+ shelters. Then I could protest for lgbtq+ rights. I could also stand up for lgbtq+ people. Another way I could try to help is by helping homophobic people understand it's not wrong to love your own gender or anything like that. Finally I would keep fighting for rights and never stop. That's some ways I can change the world.

I would help for so many different reasons. I would teach younger generations because even after I die they could keep helping. I would also teach younger generations because then they know it's not wrong. Also I would try to help homophobic people understand it's not wrong. I would do that because it might help them to learn to be supporting plus then when or if these people have kids they would teach their kids it was ok. That's how I could teach younger generations!

Here's some more ways I could help. I could donate to a lgbtq+ shelter. Whether that be food, time, money, clothes whatever really. I could also protest for lgbtq+ rights!

Protesting is a great way to show that i support them and want equality. That's why i'll donate and protest.

Here's the last two ways i could help. I can stand up for people in lgbtq+. I would stand up for them because that's what i believe and i'd be showing i support them. Finally i'll keep fighting for rights until i die or i just cant. By standing up for people and fighting for them it shows i care and support lgbtq+ people.

Those are just a few ways i could help end homophobia. There's probably hundreds or thousands of more ways to help. Also you could always help! If you ever think of a way to help then help. I will continue to fight for the rights of the lgbtq+ community.
